The challenge

More than ever, Project Managers are responsible for ensuring that every aspect of the delivery, from requirements, supplier selection, development testing, delivery through to operations are well planned and executed and are delivered on time and within budget.

Faced with a whole range of development and resource demands many Project Managers recognise that the testing and QA element of the project is an area that presents special challenges and that requires special attention.

Common problems Project Managers face include:

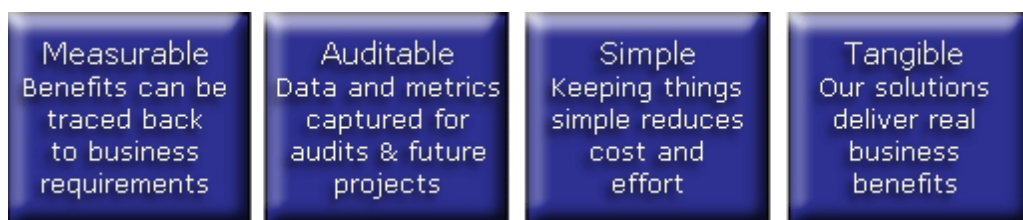

- ❏ How to verify Requirements
- ❏ How to evaluate suppliers from a test and QA perspective
- ❏ What testing regime should be included in the contract
- ❏ How to decide how much testing is enough
- ❏ Whether to use a test tool and if so which one
- ❏ How to manage the test and reporting process

Whether unfamiliar with testing methodologies, or busy with other areas of development, many Project Managers are looking for somebody who can take ownership of the whole test and QA project management or execution process.

Working closely with project managers to understand their requirements Roque Consulting can provide a tailor made solution that meets the local needs.
